ROBBED 3RD TIME;
LOSS PUT AT $700Post Office and School Office
Are Looted By
AmateursTOOK STUDENTS' MONEYThieves Entered the Front
Corridor of The Building

DOYLESTOWN, May 20—For the third time within a comparatively short period the National Farm School post-office and the school's business office have been robbed. The loss may reach over $700 with $127 belonging to the post-office department of the school.

Federal post-office inspectors and State Police are investigating. Yesterday an effort was made to take finger-prints, but police found no traces, which led them to the opinion that the thief or thieves worked with gloves.

The robbery was committed some time between 11 o'clock Sunday night and 6 o'clock Monday morning. Cletus L. Goodling, Dean of Farm School, was in the main office building, where the post-office and general offices are located, at 11 p. m., Sunday. A student discovered the robbery Monday morning and immediately notified Dean Goodling.

The thieves entered the front corridor of the building. Then they broke through the wicket window leading to the post-office, where they looked for money and stamps. In an adjoining room used by one of the school's secretaries, the thieves broke open a safe where the money was stolen. A quantity of stamps in the same safe was missed. The money stolen that did not belong to the post-office department, belonged to students who placed it in charge of the school when they entered.

Post-office inspectors and Trooper Harry Christ, of the Doylestown substation of State Police, are of the opinion that the robbery was not committed by professionals. They also intimated that they did not believe the Farm School robbery could in any way be connected with the Doylestown post-office robbery two months ago.

Wires."Hindenburg" Lands;
Delayed By Winds

Lakehurst, N. J., May 20—(INS)—Completing its second westward crossing of the Atlantic, the giant dirigible "Hindenburg" landed at the naval air station here at 7.03 a. m., today.

Lack of adequate weather reports were blamed by Captain Lehman, commander of the airship, for the comparative slow time the "Hindenburg" made on the Westward crossing. He estimated the elapsed time as 76 hours and 39 minutes.

In spite of a swirling ground wind which for a time threatened to assume such proportions as to make mooring impossible, the "Hindenburg" was brought to an almost perfect landing by Captain Lehman.

At 6.58 a. m. the first line was thrown from the airship, and five minutes later it was safely fastened to the mooring mast.

The airship did not circle New York City before landing, as it did on its first flight here 10 days ago. Delayed considerably by head winds over the ocean, which for a time reduced its speed to 40 knots, the "Hindenburg" came over the New Jersey coast just north of Atlantic City, and headed directly for Lakehurst.

There were only about 200 people in addition to the ground crew at the field to greet the Zepplin, in striking contrast to the 5000 or more excited spectators who witnessed the first landing.

Present plans call for the airship to undergo a quick refueling today, and take off tonight on its return journey to Germany.

On its second westward crossing of the North Atlantic, the "Hindenburg" carried 41 passengers, 1500 pounds of baggage, 520 pounds of freight, 260 pounds of mail. The first westward trip was made in 62 hours, a new record for lighter-than-air craft, and the return to Frankfurt-on-Main negotiated in 49 hours, 3 minutes.

Landon Leads in New Jersey

Trenton, N. J., May 20—Another victory for Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, was registered today when New Jersey's solid delegation of 32 convention votes were pledged to him. Tabulations of yesterday's primaries was progressing slowly but Governor Landon was running 4 to 1 ahead of Senator Borah of Idaho.

At 9 a. m. returns from 1,353 districts, out of 3,589 in the state, gave Landon 132,713 against Borah's 33,967.

An interesting aspect of the voting was the fight between Governor Harold Hoffman and former Representative Franklin W. Fort, for delegate at large. Though both are Landon pledgers, Fort had waged a ferocious battle to keep Hoffman away from the convention because of the activities in the Hauptmann case.

NEWTOWN MAN MEETS
DEATH AT TOP OF POLEJames Hays, 32, Electrocuted
While Working As Lineman
At Washington Crossing

CONTACTED "LIVE" WIRE

WASHINGTON CROSSING, May 20—A young Newtown man, James Hays, 32, was electrocuted while engaged at his employment as a lineman for the Philadelphia Electric Company, near Washington Crossing, yesterday morning.

He was working in the crew of William K. Stradling, of Newtown. The men were changing the high powered lines along the old trolley roadbed on the Yardley-New Hope Road and were resetting and respacing the poles. Hays was alone on the pole and had his arms shielded with rubber padding to protect him from contact with the wires.

Fellow workmen believed his shoulder touched the line. He uttered a cry and workmen saw his body hanging limply on the pole, supported only by his safety belt. A rescue crew went by the pole and brought Hays down. They worked over him with a pulmotor, but failed to revive him. The Lambertville fire patrol ambulance was summoned and rushed the victim to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, but he was dead upon arrival at the institution.

Coroner Ellwood Howarth issued a burial permit and turned the body over to a Newtown undertaker.

Hays is survived by his wife, Dolly Courtney Hays; a young son, "Bobby"; his mother, who resides in Penns Grove, N. J.; five sisters, Mrs. Archibald Curdren, the Misses Ruth, Grace, Genevieve and Dorothy Hays; and one brother, Frank Hays.

Hays had been employed by the Philadelphia Electric Company for a number of years.

FARMERS REFUSE TO BE BRIBED

By Representative Dewey Short of Missouri

A call for independence has been sounded by farmers in New Jersey to farmers throughout the country asking general agricultural resistance to the attempt to "control and regulate the lives of the American people."

A resolution passed at a meeting of farmers in West Amwell Township calls the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act a new A.A.A. and charges that it is actually a "vote solicitation scheme" of the Administration.

The resolution in part follows:

"We, the undersigned farmers of West Amwell Township * * * declare that we will not be bribed to put the control of our farms at the disposal of the Government of the United States; and therefore solemnly pledge ourselves not to enter into the so-called 'soil conservation' but actual vote-solicitation scheme of the new A.A.A., and hereby call upon our fellow farmers throughout the United States to join us in resisting this new attempt to control and regulate the lives of the American people."

A letter, accompanying a copy of the resolution sent to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, declares that soil conservation has been practiced by farmers in West Amwell Township for much longer than anyone is able to remember; that the farmers there are free and intend to retain their freedom and pass it on unimpaired to their children. The letter states that they are too proud and too independent to look to the United States Treasury for assistance; that eventually such a scheme will exhaust both the Federal funds and credit.

No hearings were held on the soil conservation bill. Members of Congress who were forced to a vote on it were unable to say what its language meant, except that it simply handed over $500,000,000 to the Secretary of Agriculture under regulations to be devised by him. It is vicious legislation, designed to enslave farmers.

Farmers in my own district who have practiced soil conservation tell me they do not wish to be taxed to pay bounties to those not energetic enough to do this. We are just now finding out where the greater part of the A.A.A. payments went—to large corporations and owners of large tracts of land, some foreigners and some who leased land from Indians at 50 cents an acre, collecting A.A.A. checks for not growing crops.

REPUBLICANS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY IN NOVEMBERPredict State Will Elect Large Majority of CongressmenTO GET HOUSE CONTROL

HARRISBURG, May 20—Republicans attending the meeting of the State Committee in Philadelphia Saturday came away confident of victory in November.

The unanimous re-election of State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor, under whose leadership Pennsylvania Republicans twice in the first year of the Earle Administration rolled up majorities of a quarter million or more, was followed by predictions of well informed party leaders that not only would Pennsylvania go Republican in November for President and elect a large majority of Republican Congressional candidates, but that the party will wrest the House of Representatives at Harrisburg from the Democrats and continue control of the Senate.

Harmony within the party was pointed out by Edwin R. Cox, of Philadelphia, in seconding the nomination of Chairman Taylor, when he said, "With him as Chairman the old-time antagonisms between city and up-State have been wiped out. There is no longer a city line for our party. Philadelphia and up-State Republicans have one common interest—the success of the party next November."

Mr. Cox pointed out that in two special county elections and twice in general elections in the past year Chairman Taylor led the party to victory. "Every time Taylor has gone into battle since Earle became Governor he has won," Mr. Cox continued. "Never before has a Governor been repudiated four times in the first year of his term. Never has a State Chairman, confronted by such obstacles and handicaps, delivered so handsomely."

Political observers in attendance discovered that there is, in the opinion of local leaders, a pronounced subsidence of Roosevelt sentiment throughout the State. They not only think it possible to beat Roosevelt in November, they were willing to bet substantial sums they will beat him. It was freely predicted among those best acquainted with the State-at-large that at least 100,000 dissatisfied and disappointed Democrats will vote against Roosevelt at the coming elections.

Not alone that, but large numbers of Republicans who voted Democratic in 1934, in the belief that the Democrats meant what they said when they promised restored prosperity, reduced taxes and economies of government, are now returning by the thousands to the Republican fold angry over the new tax burdens imposed upon them by the Earle-Guffey machine.

Also, many wet Republicans who supported Roosevelt in 1932 by reason of his stand on prohibition won't do so this year, because prohibition is no longer an issue.

BRISTOL MAN INSTANTLY KILLED
A SHORT DISTANCE FROM HIS HOME
AS HE RIDES BICYCLE ON HIGHWAYCharles Huckvale, 52, Meets Accidental Death at Farragut
Avenue and Cleveland Street, When Run Down by Truck;
Had Left Home Only Few Minutes Previous to Accident

A well-known Bristol resident, Charles Huckvale, 52, 1024 Pond street, was instantly killed here this morning while en route to his employment at Florence, N. J. The accident occurred at Farragut avenue and Cleveland street at about five o'clock. The victim was riding a bicycle.

Huckvale was run down by a truck driven by Samuel Rosenblatt, 23, 353 Winton street, Philadelphia. Rosenblatt was accompanied by Louis Frantz, 5016 N. 7th street, Philadelphia, owner of the truck.

Rosenblatt told police that he did not see Huckvale until it was too late to stop his truck.

Mr. Huckvale left his home at the usual time and started to ride to Edgely, where it was his custom to take a boat and go with others to Florence, N. J., where he was employed in a foundry. This morning he had ridden his wheel but a short distance when the accident occurred.

Deputy Coroner Dr. James Lawler was summoned and the body was removed to the Molden morgue.

Mr. Huckvale was a native of New York but had resided in Bristol for the past 21 years. He was active in fraternal circles and was affiliated with Camp No. 789, P. O. S. of A., and the J. S. Brady Commandery.

The survivors are the wife of the deceased; a daughter, Mrs. Leatha Elder; and a son, Alden.

The accident occurred on the curve in the highway at Farragut avenue and Cleveland street. Mr. Huckvale was tossed off the wheel and thrown with great force against the roadway. The truck was damaged on the left side, the fender being considerably dented and the headlight broken.

Police also said that the steering gear appeared to have been broken. The truck had to be towed from the scene. Whether the steering gear broke before the accident and was the cause of it, has not been determined.

Rosenblatt was placed under arrest by Officer Phillips and held to await the action of the coroner.

The truck was carrying oil in containers and was en route to New York. The driver told police he makes several trips a week between Philadelphia and New York.

Mr. Huckvale was riding his wheel in the same direction as the truck was traveling and was struck from the rear.

Fathers To Eat Turkey And Elect Officers

By way of variety and reestablishing a custom of former years, the regular monthly meeting of the Fathers' Association of the Bristol public schools will be held in conjunction with a roast turkey dinner to be served in the high school cafeteria at seven o'clock this evening. Invitation cards were mailed to all members, and the acceptances received show that there will be a large attendance. Paul D. Brown, chairman of the committee on arrangements, reports that there is every indication that the occasion will be thoroughly enjoyable and an appropriate closing of the Association's current year of activity.

The major business to be disposed of consists of the election of officers for the coming year. Nominations made at the April meeting are as follows: President, Paul V. Forster; vice-president, Warren Woodruff; recording secretary, Earl W. McEuen; financial secretary, Paul D. Brown; treasurer, George R. King; members of executive board, Walter J. Rosser, Edwin Hey, Harry Bauroth, and Theodore C. Burns.

Election of officers is being held in May for the first time in the Association's history. Previously, elections were held in December, but it was found that this often caused an interruption in activities at a time when everything should be in full swing. By an amendment to the by-laws the Association's fiscal year was made to correspond more nearly to the school year. This evening's meeting will be the last until September.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER

A Bristol high school girl emblazoned the name of her school upon the records of time when Miss Eleanor Petrick made that wonderful broad-jump Saturday at Norristown and smashed the National scholastic record by leaping eight feet, 7 3/4 inches.

This is the second student from Bristol high to achieve honors of national rating in athletics, Roman Pico having, last year, achieved distinction when he climbed the rope for the national record.

Bristol schools have made wonderful progress in athletics during the past few years and their achievement proves what consistent and well-directed practice can do.

The attainments of Miss Petrick and Mr. Pico should encourage others to follow explicitly the directions of Bristol school's two coaches, Miss Pope and Mr. Dougherty. Both these coaches take great interest in their work, and they have the confidence of the students. To witness the co-operation and voluntary assistance these two instructors receive is to see a practical testimony of the respect and esteem in which they are held.

The spirit of Bristol school students should get a great uplift; and school sports, as well as every other school activity, should take on new interest and enthusiasm because of what their fellow-students have accomplished.

BACK TO BABBLING

Dr. Frank W. Chandler, professor of comparative literature and English at the University of Cincinnati, thinks some of our modern poets, who are intent on expression, rather than communication, are talking to themselves rather than to their readers and he regards such goings-on as childish. Indeed, he sees certain moderns of poetry as reverting to "the infantile, a sort of second childhood."

"Such poets are really completing the cycle begun in the cradle and leading back to the cradle," says Dr. Chandler. "The speech of the baby begins in screaming, proceeds to babbling and develops through a 'little language,' in which communication has become an aim, although the child uses clipped or imperfect words. . . . Some of our modern poets are going back of this 'little language' to that of the babbling time, producing rhythmical sounds just for their own amusement. And the question is: 'How soon will they revert to the screaming time and who then will heed them?'"

But, Dr. Chandler, in their quest of self-expression, regardless of whether or not their expression communicates anything to the reader, haven't some of our poets already gone in for a bit of screaming? And who heeds them now?

A fossil found by a New York student and thought to be 100 million years old is believed now to be 245 million. Due, no doubt, to the recent change from standard time.

A correspondent is amazed that the Japanese raise no cry against the mounting burden of taxes. It is a penalty of speaking a language that has no profanity.

But too often a reformer is just an old guy who wishes to interfere with fun he can't share.

Back home, swing music was a mandolin, and the swing was built for two.

Republicans Confident Of Victory In November

It was also reported that there are splits in the Democratic party and that large numbers of Democrats will vote against Democratic legislative candidates who permitted themselves to be brow beaten by Earle into voting for the imposition of heavy taxes which are now being used to build up the Democratic political machine.

E. Arthur Sweeney, well known Greensburg publisher, and Frank L. Pinola, Luzerne county lawyer and former State Commander of the American Legion, candidates for Auditor General and State Treasurer, respectively, on the Republican ticket, were guests of honor at the committee meeting and received assurances that they will carry the State by large majorities in the Fall.

It was pointed out as being of particular importance that these two be elected to the fiscal offices of the State, in order to prevent the Earle Administration from extending its spending spree by control of the Treasury and the Auditor General's office.

Chairman Taylor struck the keynote of the meeting when he said: "The Republican party believes that the American people are still Republican and that they desire to save their country from the maelstrom of debt and disaster into which a continuation of New Deal policies would be certain to plunge it."

"Republicans believe that American citizens, regardless of party, are tired of being required to pay, pay, pay for blessings that never come. We believe that Americans are disgusted with an Administration at Washington, lacking in any consecutive policy save that of devising ways and means of buying votes with public funds. We believe that Americans are far more concerned with the preservation of their liberties than they are in how much they can get in money that they will have to pay back with compound interest."

"This being true," Chairman Taylor continued, "the Republican party becomes the natural haven for both the conservative and the true liberal. Together they constitute a large majority of our citizens. United, as they will be in this campaign, they are invincible.

"The Republican party stands for the practical idealism of those who founded our government. The Republican party stands, as it always has stood, for high wages and steady work; for busy factories and prosperous farms; for freedom and happiness under the guarantees of the Constitution.

"The Republican party stands in bold opposition to those who would rob us of our liberties in the name of reform, who would sink the nation in bankruptcy under the guise of public benefactions, who delude with false promises and deliberate misrepresentation, who pick our pockets even as they smile and call us friend.

"Conservative citizens stand against Liberals, deluded by fair promises to the support of Earle in Harrisburg and Roosevelt in Washington, are walking out on those who have betrayed them. Their only refuge is the Republican party."

"BLIND TO LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

SYNOPSIS

Mary Shannon, young and pretty stenographer, is broken-hearted when she learns that James Todd, Jr., is engaged to Neta Grainger. Mary had known "Jamie" for two years and, though he never committed himself, he inferred that some day they would marry. She tries to hide her hurt feelings from her parents and Aunt Willie. One night Mary works overtime and her handsome employer, Stephen Bennett, takes her to dinner. He has just been appointed manager of the Seattle office of the A. A. Heeley Steamship Company and wants Mary to go as his secretary. She does not want to leave her family. At home, Mary writes "Jamie" asking him to meet her when he comes to town so that she can congratulate him.

CHAPTER VII

The door squeaked. Her mother said, "Whatever are you doing, sitting up there with the light on at this hour?"

"Couldn't sleep. Woke up. So I thought I'd kill time writing a couple of letters."

By leaning back on the pillow the big pile of torn paper was hidden, she hoped, and she slipped the last one, the one she had been reading over, under the pillow.

"What are YOU doing up? I didn't wake you, did I? Oh, Ma, go back to bed!"

Ma shook her head. She looked terribly tired, too, but sort of young, with her hair, that she had never had cut. In two little dark pigtailed over her shoulders and her old-fashioned white nightgown showing below the gray flannellette bathrobe she had pulled tight around her.

"No, you didn't wake me. I haven't slept. Sometimes your father's snoring bothers me. I couldn't drop off tonight. I got to thinking. Mary, I've let your Aunt Willie draw out the last of her share of what mama left us . . . she's doing something funny with the money—I'm worried!"

When Ma had been coaxed back to bed, and Mary was alone again with the door closed, she lay back wearily.

Just as if she didn't have troubles enough already, without Aunt Willie acting up! Ma ought to have more sense! Letting her draw out the last of their joint savings account, that they called their "estate money"—not even finding out what she was doing with it.

Well, it wasn't hard to guess. Some quack was getting it. She'd spent hundreds already—every cent she earned, and most of the little that Grandma Geddes left, fussing around, going on crazy diets, and taking crazier treatments, and there wasn't a thing wrong with her. Ma ought to put a stop to it!

She closed her eyes. There was a soft blue light in the room, and the sparrows were setting up their early morning din in the palm tree. Must be almost time to get up—hardly worth while going to sleep again.

Ma had a hard time waking her at seven. She was shocked and a little pleased at her own palor as she dressed.

"For once you could stand a little rouge, Babe," Ma said.

But Mary rather liked the effect of white skin and scarlet lips. She almost missed the train, adding a touch of the gray eye-shadow she usually saved for evenings to heighten the effect.

Bennet was impressed. He was really worried about her. "I can't forgive myself for not working you! Why didn't you let me know?"

"You should have stayed home. You aren't well enough to be here."

"Oh, I'm all right. I thought I ought to be here. It's your last show."

"Well, of course, I did want to mark on a dress, or the way I've and to say goodbye. After all, when two people have worked together every day for eight months, as we have—"

Yes, she had been working eight months, though it seemed longer in some ways, and not half so long in other ways. . . . Eight months since she had left college. . . . Maybe if she hadn't left. . . . Maybe Jamie's folks influenced him against a girl who worked. . . .

"You sort of hate to break up the combination, too, don't you?"

She looked up at him, gathering her thoughts. "What?"

"I mean, after we've worked together for so long, it's something of a wrench to separate, and go our different ways."

"Oh! Yes."

"It's just barely possible that this won't be permanent. I may not suit up north, and—"

"Why, Mr. Bennett? Of course you

Heaven save me from THAT! Mary thought, and so she was a little cooler in her farewell to Bennett than she need have been. Especially as he let her go home early —first time she'd ever caught the three o'clock!—and told her to keep in touch with him, and let him know if things didn't go just right for her—

But that's better than going too far the other way. And what did it matter?

She wished she hadn't mailed that letter to Jamie. It was a little too casual. Just like her. Always playing safe. Well, when she wrote again, after the ice was broken, would be time enough. . . .

Aunt Willie was home when she got there. It was her afternoon off.

"My dear, he's MAD about you! The way he LOOKS at you!" Ethelyn exclaimed.

will! Look at all you've accomplished here!"

Heavens, how conceited men are! Stand there, waiting for you to pile it on, thicker and thicker. Did he expect her to burst into tears because he was leaving?

Just because a man is young and nice looking—he really was extremely nice looking—he thinks every girl is ready to fall for him. Well, she was no Ethelyn Piper, thank you. No boss would affect her temper.

She mentioned Bennett's leaving, quite casually, to Ethelyn who happened to meet in the dressing room.

"He asked me to go with him! It would be sort of fun, but of course I wouldn't consider it."

"My dear, he's MAD about you! I've seen that for weeks. The way he LOOKS at you! Why, he—"

"Yes, I know how he looks at me. The way he looks at the window washer and the towel man, and rent collector—"

"Mary, you don't mean that. You must know—"

"I know, all right."

"But, Mary, a girl can't always ought to be here. I never notice the Chief showing any interest in me, particularly, except of course that he will remark on a dress, or the way I've cut my hair, or something like that. But the other girls notice all the time. The telephone girl says it's simply killing the way he—"

PLACE FOUR BOXERS ON THE INACTIVE LIST

Four members of the St. Ann's Athletic Association boxing team were placed on the inactive list last night. They are: Sammy Baiocchi, Harry Davis, Tony Puccio, and Sylvester Purnell. The four will not be on the opening card of the outdoor season which will start Monday night in the St. Ann's Arena, Wood and Franklin streets.

Davis and Baiocchi are under a doctor's care. Baiocchi will appear on the next St. Ann's card while it is feared that Davis will be lost for the remainder of the outdoor season. Puccio has an infected ear and can not box Ralph Mazzone. Purnell injured a rib and will appear on the next card.

A newcomer to the St. Ann's team, Frank Rubino, worked out in the St. Ann's gym last night and was very impressive. Rubino, who recently moved in this district of the A. A. U., won the Jersey A. A. U. championship four years ago and is now attempting a comeback. Matchmaker Moffo will secure a bout for him for this card.

Tony Maglione, who has captured six straight wins, is also booked for this show, while it is most likely that Vince Della will battle Tony Surello in a return match. Another bout in the making is that terrific biter, Ralph Romano, Mason, and Francis McClay, Kensington. These boys put up a whale of a battle in one of the indoor shows and for several weeks the fans clamored for a return match which was never booked.

The following localities are training daily in hopes of having a bout for the opening card: Tony Maglione, Willie Leighton, Phil Quici, Lenny Dever, Johnny Raccagno, Vince Della, Donato Sciarra, Al Horn, James Redman, Al Marchetti, Jimmy DePento, and Frank Rubino.

Reserve seats can be had by phoning 9934.

LAST WRESTLING AT TRENTON ARENA TONIGHT

TRENTON, May 20 — The curtain will ring down on the indoor wrestling season at the Arena tonight with a slugfest between two of the grapplers that have made the best records here this season. Dynamite Joe Cox, powerful giant-killer and a favorite of the fans, will clash with Ivan Managoff, rowdy Russian-American youngster. In the two fall out of three, 90-minute time limit feature event. This will be their second meeting here and if it is anything like the first it is, which many fans claim was the best ever contested at the Arena, it should keep John Q. Fan on his seat from beginning to end.

Managoff, an accomplished bonerender, defeated Harry Fields, Lawrence Baxter, Vanka Zelezniak and scored his most unpopular triumph over Rusty Westcott. He incurred the wrath of the fans when he crashed Rusty's head against the ring posts, inflicting a nasty gash that required medical treatment.

Cox has made a spectacular surge to the fore this season, and in Arena combats, he fought sensational draws with Chief Little Wolf and Gino Garibaldi and downed Dr. Len Hall, John Swenski, and Serge Kalmikoff. Last week he downed Gus Sonnenberg and Joe holds wins over Ernie Dusek and Joe Savoldi.

A snappy semi-windup will bring together two of wrestling's toughest candidates, Abie Coleman, sawed-off Hebrew drop-kicker, and Charlie Strack, former Olympic champion and a rough and tumble matman.

In other bouts, Hank Barber, Dartmouth athlete, tangles with huge Floyd Marshall, and Eli Fischer of Rutgers meets Sailor Al Billings.

The first bout will start at 8.45 and popular prices will prevail.

CASEYS TRIM BATH ROAD FOR THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE
Schedule for Tonight
HIBERNIANS vs. EXCELSIOR
ST. ANN'S at EDGELY

The Caseys won their third straight victory of the Bristol Twilight League last night as they trimmed the Bath Road Men's Club, 6-2. At the conclusion of the first half of the fifth inning, rain interfered with the contest, thereby making it a legal game. The Caseys are undefeated in the loop.

"Milt" Jones did the firing for the winners and limited the Rittersmen to three safe blows, all of which came in the fourth when the Roaders rallied to shave down a Caseys' lead to four runs. In every other frame, the Men's Club was helpless at the hands of Jones.

Mel Wright, the twirler for the Bath Road team, was banged for four hits. He was given poor support by his mates who allowed the runs to sneak over the plate on what should have been easy outs. Joe Dougherty led the hitters with two out of three.

The game between the Odd Fellows and the Edgely Braves was called at the beginning of the fourth because of rain. At the time, the Odds were leading the Millermen, 4-1. "Dizzy" Dean was tossing them for the Odd Fellows, being opposed by Ira Walterick.

admonished his boy about running around with White.

When the woman in whose house she was residing refused to give her an electric ironing cord, Emma Herschel, of South Langhorne, charged with assault and battery, is alleged to have taken a swing at her, striking her on the head and causing her ear to bleed. Mrs. Herschel, the mother of two boys, was in jail a month.

Mrs. Myrtle Nemick, who lives at South Langhorne, testified that she took the defendant-wife and her husband in and that he agreed to pay the electric bills.

"She came to borrow my ironing cord and I refused because Mr. Herschel did not pay the electric bills as she promised to do. Mrs. Herschel said to me 'You're the meanest woman I have ever known' and struck me on the side of my head over the ear. My ear stung for two hours," testified Mrs. Nemick.

The defendant, who wore a black dress which almost touched the floor and seemed extremely penitent, told Judge Boyer the prosecutrix's story was true.

Judge Boyer suspended sentence and placed the defendant on probation for six months on condition that they leave the property of Mrs. Nemick within ten days. The costs were placed on the county.

"People get the idea when they are tenants on someone's property that it belongs to them and they can stay without paying. It is just another form of dishonesty. You have no more right to stay there without paying than you have to their personal belongings. Too many people have the wrong idea about stealing real estate," Judge Boyer said, reprimanding Mrs. Herschel and her husband, who is employed in a diner.

Joseph Mobers, West Rockhill, who pleaded guilty to assault and battery with intent to kill, aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery, and has been in jail since April 29, was directed by Judge Calvin S. Boyer to pay the costs of prosecution in installments of $10 per month and placed on probation for one year. Sentence was suspended.

Following a drunken spree, the defendant threw a stone at his landlady, Mrs. Catherine Scheetz, a widow with whom he has been living for four years, fracturing her arm.

Mrs. Scheetz testified that Mobers, a 52-year-old German, was a good man when he was sober, but that he became nasty when he drank, which he did every week-end. "I am sorry that I had to arrest him. He's been a good man to me and I will be glad to have him come back if he stops drinking."

Judge Boyer warned Mobers about drinking and not paying the costs of prosecution. "If the Court hears that you are spending your money on liquor and not paying the costs of this case you will be brought back and sent to jail for a year."

John Kakas, 126 Home avenue, Trenton, N. J., who served 11 months in the county prison on a charge of aggravated assault and battery and assault and battery which grew out of an attack on two girls near the Morrisville railroad bridge, was granted a parole by Judge Boyer. The defendant was directed to pay the costs in installments. County Detective Russo was appointed probation officer.

John Francis, of Yardley, who served three months in the county prison, after being involved in a series of thefts from a Yardley bleachery, was granted a parole by Judge Boyer. County Detective Russo was appointed probation officer.

Sentence was suspended by Judge Boyer in the case of Daniel J. Keller, of Torresdale, who pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while drunk on the Lincoln Highway on March 23rd, when he was arrested by Patrolman Carfagno, of South Langhorne. A condition was attached to the sentence that Keller pay the costs within 30 days and that he be placed on probation for one year.

Keller testified that he was working for the W. P. A. in March when he picked up a stranger while working near Somerton, and the stranger gave him two drinks that made him drunk. The defendant said the stranger got away with his car and wrecked it in Bristol.

Keller testified that he is now employed by a well known ice company for whom he previously worked for 12 years.

Judge Boyer directed that Norman Davis, colored, of Trenton, pay $5 a week toward the support of his two children, both of whom reside in Bristol.
